Amanera in the Dominican Republic is one of the Caribbean's few resorts to offer the opportunity to purchase a property from its collection of villas

COINED BY CHRISTOPHER Columbus as 'the most beautiful land eyes have ever seen', the Dominican Republic features colonial charm, dramatic landscapes and an expansive stretch of raw coastline. Taking full advantage of this fabulous location, the newly opened resort of Amanera is the first golf-integrated Aman in the world and the first Aman in the Dominican Republic.

The resort covers over 2,000 acres of virtually untouched land featuring verdant peaks, lush jungle with centuries-old trees and royal palms on nearly seven miles of continuous Atlantic coastline. It is located alongside the undulating fairways and challenging greens of the lauded Playa Grande Golf Course. Originally designed by the late golf legend Robert Trent Jones Sr, the course has been fully renovated by his son, Rees Jones and overlooks the Playa Grande beach.

Amanera offers extensive dining, spa and recreational facilities and 25 casitas, each designed to complement their natural setting. Those wishing to visit on a more regular basis may purchase one of the Amanera Villas. These range from two to six bedrooms with floor-to-ceiling windows, expansive outdoor terraces and sweeping views over the Atlantic Ocean. Residents and guests have access to all the facilities at Amanera, including use of the Aman Spa, the resort's well-equipped fitness centre and the beach club. ■

Two-bedroom villas from £2.6m / €3.58m / $4m

Large villas from £4.58m / €6.27m / $7m
